

IN SEARCH OF THE LAST ISLAND-LIVING TIGER AND THE ENDANGERED JAGUAR

SUMATRA – INDONESIA / ATLANTIC COAST - BRAZIL

Projeto Puma is a non-profit Brazilian NGO dedicated to the conservation of world's wildlife, with over 20 years of experience on wild cat research. It has published a number of scientific publications on the subject, some of them with the participation of volunteers.

Join us in our effort to make a difference in the conservation of one of the most endangered tiger and jaguar lineages in the world. We are in contact with a number of notorious partners in Brazil and Sumatra to develop this conservation expedition.

Destination

Protected areas of central Sumatra, province of Riau

Duration

Six (6) to twelve (12) days

Expedition fee

£ 800 (1,280 USD) for 6 days (beginner level), or £ 1,200 (1,900 USD) for 12 days.

Calendar 2011-2012

March and April

Expeditions are run at a yearly basis. Ask also for customized expeditions to fit your agenda.

Destination

Protected areas of the Brazilian Atlantic Coast, State of Paraná

Duration

Six (7) to twelve (14) days

Expedition fee

€ 750.00 (£ 660 and 1,050 USD) for 7 days (beginner level), and € 1,225.00 (£ 1,070 and 1,700 USD) for 14 days

Calendar 2010-2012

August

Expeditions are run at a yearly basis

BRAZILIAN JAGUAR

Tel.: (+55) 49 9918-9204, 48 9901-0295, 49 3223-7971 e-mail: info@projeto-puma.org
internet: www.projeto-puma.org